Newsletter's Agricultural Correspondent reports that weeds appearing on the Astro Turf runway are "opportunistic" plants, some from seeds blown on to the turf during a wet summer, others contained in the underlying sand and finding their way up through the drainage holes in the turf backing. Not a serious threat and really nothing to worry about!

ABOVE: There was no shortage of helpers, advisors and volunteer throttle benders when Steve Hester bolted his massive and expensive seven cylinder OS Sirius radial engine (inset) to one of our model tables and fired it up. Steve is threatening to mount it in his recently-acquired Flair quarter scale Stearman biplane but admits he has a lot of flying training to do before he can handle it. In the meantime, he says, the engine will stay on a display plinth at home "because it looks so magnificent." Steve also says that any advice from more experienced club members "would be most welcome." (Who said "Don't"?)

WLMAC RULES REVISED

The club rules have been carefully revised to exclude out-dated or redundant rules and to take account of changes to the field itself.

The new rules include a clear and detailed account of the arrangements and procedures for retrieving downed models from Stocker's Farm, to avoid giving cause for complaint to the owner, whose goodwill is important to us. Members should take the time to read them carefully.

Among some interesting additions to the rules is the possibility of subjecting some electric ducted fan foamies to the seven-in-the-evening curfew that is already applied to IC models on the grounds of noise nuisance. Although they are few in number, some DF electrics emit a loud, high-pitched whine that rivals a noisy two-stroke for irritation factor, earning them the nickname "screaming hair dryers." If any two members consider a model to be excessively noisy, it may be grounded until it can undergo a noise meter test, though the current wisdom about noise is that "perceived excessive noise IS noise!"

There is also a heavy reminder that members must take "every reasonable precaution" to ensure that both they and their models are capable of safe and controlled flight before launching off.

The new rules also remind members that everyone is responsible for keeping the field ordered, tidy and secure, including taking away and disposing of full bin bags from the club house.

It is time to give members the annual reminder that despite all the good-natured flight line wisecracks about "the committee", its members are not a self-appointed collection of control freaks, but dedicated club members, democratically elected at every Annual General Meeting, who give their time to managing the club and its finances. This year they oversaw the installation of our Astro Turf runway and organised the biggest and most successful Scale Day in the club's history. The West London Model Aeroplane Club has nearly a hundred members who are proud and appreciative of the convivial atmosphere at Harefield. You are invited to make a contribution to that by offering to do a year's service on the committee. Get yourself a proposer and a seconder from among your flying mates, fill in the form below and fire it off to the Secretary. It looks a bit formal but it is the proper way to do it – the committee does everything properly, with the welfare, safety and contentment of every member in mind.
